

CONFERENCE THEME

'Realising Opportunities Together' - With 30 years of successful Conferencing behind us, we can't afford to be complacent, we must always look to the future and invest in any opportunity for consultation and cooperation between all sectors of the Mining Industry in Queensland.

If we are successful in uniting and harnessing the power of all industry sectors we can only imagine what outcomes might result.

These are exciting times – Mining will always be subject to the influences of climate extremes, local and global economics and supply and demand. All these factors make keeping focussed extremely difficult however the more closely we work together, the better we will be able to ride out the peaks and troughs which are endemic to our industry.

Health and Safety must always remain at the forefront of everything we do and by taking just a few days each year to attend this Conference we will be able to 'Realise Opportunities together'.

Carrying out routine tyre maintenance on mining equipment is the single most likely event to cause a fatality in an Australian mine. The statistics prove tyre maintenance is often a difficult, dangerous and hazardous task.

This session will demonstrate the enormous amounts of energy that are released in a tyre explosion and highlight the relevant controls, why we need to have these in place to prevent such events occurring, and how such preventative measures have failed in the past.

To demonstrate these points a scenario will be enacted that provides an opportunity for both a coal and a metalliferous-based rescue team to demonstrate an emergency response to a catastrophic tyre failure.

Continuing Industry’s desire to learn from other sites’ incidents and following past conference themes, this session will feature your fellow Mine Workers sharing the details of issues they have had on their sites. This is meant to be a grass roots session without “spin”. A simple presentation on what occurred and if you went to that particular site now what you would find being done differently. It is for you to consider the relevance to your site and for you to determine if you have a similar exposure and if you have the controls to reasonably preclude a similar event.

COMPETENCIES FOR SUPERVISORS

Chair: Greg Dalliston, Industry Safety & Health Representative, CFMEU Mining and Energy Division Queensland Region

10.45 - 12.15pm

Come and have your Say!

This is your opportunity to influence the standard of supervision in our industry. Over the last few years, the industry has had a number of serious and fatal accidents where effective supervision has been raised as a contributing factor.

This session will include a brief introduction to the reasons why the review into the three units of competency (Risk Management, Accident Investigation and Communications) is being undertaken, with Industry, Department and Unions represented.

It will then be open to give attendees a chance to have input into a review of what skills and competencies the industry sees as being required to assist persons appointed as supervisors to ensure that the work under their care is conducted to an acceptable level of risk, their responsibilities and obligations to the workers being supervised and that safety and health related information is passed on to those continuing with that work at the mine.

The session will conclude with a summary of the issues raised which will be fed back into the Project Committee through the IRC, SSO and PWC.

SAFETY TRAINING WORKSHOP

Proudly Sponsored by Resources Training Council

1.15 – 2.45pm

Ensuring the Competency Needs of Industry are Met

This Workshop will be coordinated by Jim Munro, Chief Executive Officer, Resources Training Council (RTC)

Nationally recognised, competency-based training was introduced into Australia in the 1990s. The aim of Training Packages and national qualifications was to ensure Australian industries could:

- Identify the minimum skills and knowledge required by workers
- Issue qualifications to workers
- Identify career paths for workers
- Ensure transferability of skills

After 30 years, have we achieved these goals?

The outcomes of recent reviews would suggest a lack of consultation with relevant industry stakeholders has resulted in Training Packages and qualifications that are in fact, not fit for purpose.

Fit for Purpose Outcomes

Through this Workshop, RTC will introduce you to 10235NAT Course in Field-based Training and Assessment and demonstrate how this “fit for purpose” program should be reflected in all training delivered to our industry internally or externally.
